Department Of English

During the academic year 2020-21, the Department of English admitted students into the first, second, and third years of their programs. Notably, this academic cycle also marked the commencement of the first batch of students in the final year of the Bachelor of Arts program (TYBA).

The unprecedented challenges posed by the COVID-19 pandemic necessitated a swift adaptation to online learning methodologies. Consequently, lectures were transitioned to virtual platforms, ensuring continuity in education while prioritizing the safety of students and faculty. This shift to online instruction enabled students to engage with course material, participate in discussions, and access academic resources from the safety of their homes.

Moreover, examinations were also conducted online, providing a fair and efficient assessment process. Through online evaluation methods, students' performance was rigorously reviewed, maintaining academic standards and ensuring the integrity of the assessment process.

Throughout these adaptations and challenges, the Department of English remained steadfast in its commitment to providing a purposeful and enriching academic experience for students. By embracing innovative teaching strategies and leveraging technology, the department not only facilitated learning continuity but also fostered a supportive environment conducive to student success.

This proactive approach underscores the department's dedication to academic excellence and student well-being, highlighting its resilience and adaptability in navigating unforeseen circumstances to deliver quality education.
