The Department of Zoology organized a one-day institutional visit to the Indian Council of Agricultural Research – Directorate of Onion and Garlic Research (ICAR-DOGR), Rajgurunagar, on 21st March 2025 for the students of First Year B.Sc. The visit aimed to provide students with exposure to modern biological techniques, research methodologies, and the application of biology in agricultural sciences. It was designed to bridge the gap between theoretical classroom learning and practical research experiences.

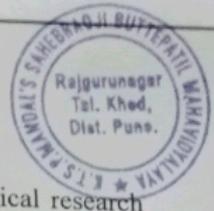

During the visit, students were welcomed by the research scientists Dr. Ashwini Benke and technical staff of ICAR-DOGR, who introduced them to the institute's objectives, research activities, and contributions to crop improvement and sustainable agriculture.

The students visited various laboratories and research facilities, including the Molecular Biology and Biotechnology Laboratory, where they observed demonstrations of DNA extraction, polymerase chain reaction (PCR), and Microscopy techniques. In the Entomology Section, they learned about pest identification, life cycles, and integrated pest management approaches used to control insect pests affecting onion and garlic crops. While the field area showcased ongoing crop breeding experiments and evaluation trials of different varieties under varying conditions.

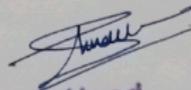

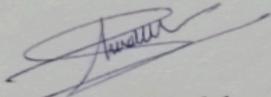

This visit provided students with valuable hands-on exposure to biological research and experimental procedures. They developed an understanding of the interconnection between zoology, botany, and agricultural sciences, as well as an appreciation for the role of research in improving crop productivity and pest management. The interaction with scientists inspired students to consider research-oriented careers in biological and agricultural sciences.

Overall, the visit to ICAR-DOGR was an enriching and educational experience that greatly enhanced the students' understanding of applied biological techniques. The Department of Zoology extends its sincere gratitude to the authorities of ICAR-DOGR, the faculty members, and the college administration for their support and cooperation in organizing this informative and inspiring visit.
